To

The Adjutant General of the Army,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:—

I have the honor to recommend to the appointing authority, Colonel Charles J. Crane, of the 9th Infantry for promotion to the grade of Brigadier General in the Regular Army.

I have known Colonel Crane for many years, and have been more or less intimately associated with him, both personally and officially, at home and abroad—in peace and in war.

Of his unexcelled record for capacity and as a line officer of Infantry, through every grade from second lieutenant to colonel, of his reputation for arduous work and high worth as Assistant Adjutant General and Military Secretary, it is not necessary for me to set forth in detail.

His fine record of thirty seven years of devoted duty stands out conspicuously and speaks for itself in the highest terms of commendation. I may add, however, that in my opinion there is no officer of our Army who is more appreciative of the merits of the American soldier regular or volunteer, who understands him better and who can more effectively combine his patriotism, discipline and morale, than Colonel Charles J. Crane. He also is in close touch with the American citzen, and develops in a marked degree by that and discreet administration, that confidence and harmony between soldier and citizen which not many know how to best attain.

About a year ago Colonel Crane succeeded to the Colonely of the 9th Infantry, a regiment in which I had the honor of serving as an officer from lieutenant to major for nearly thirty years. That regiment has a proud record, and had some of the best Colonels of the Army, and I can say, without reservation, that Colonel Crane is the peer of any Colonel the regiment ever had. This fact is fully attested by the harmony, the discipline and the esprit de corps which prevail among officers and men in the 9th Infantry.

Colonel Crane, both theoretically and practically, is fully alive to the interests of the service, and no other officer of his rank has evinced more thorough knowledge of the paramount needs of our military establishment, and that too in strict consonance with the spirit of our Republican form of government.

Much more might be said as to this officer's many merits showing his unexcelled fitness for advancement, but from my knowledge of his high character as an officer and a gentleman, I could not say less. I therefore take pleasure in recommending him, and have an abiding conviction that his advancement to a Brigadier Generalely would reflect the highest credit upon the military services, and redound to the public good in every kindred relation.

Very respectfully,
(Sgd) JESSE M. LEE,
Major General, U. S. Army, Retired.

The Adjutant General of the Army,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:—

I take great pleasure in recommending to the appointing power, Colonel C. J. Crane, 9th Infantry, for an appointment as Brigadier General whenever the opportunity may occur. Colonel Crane's worth and efficiency are a matter of record in the War Department and should he be appointed would, I am sure, fill the position with honor and dignity.

I have known him a long time.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) ALBERT L. MYER,
Brigadier General, U. S. Army.

UNION CLUB OF BOSTON.

May, 28, 1909.

To the President.

Sir:—

In connection with future promotion to the grade of Brigadier General, I recommend careful consideration of the merits and record of Colonel Charles J. Crane. Colonel Crane served several months on my staff, and I was impressed by his high character, strict attention to duty, and his attainment as a staff officer. Lack of familiarity as to his command of troops prevents my saying more than that his reputation therewith is excellent.

Very truly,

(Signed) A. W. GREELY,
Major General, Retired.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF CALIFORNIA.
San Francisco, California.

April 28, 1909.

The Adjutant General, United States Army.

Washington, D. C.

Sir:—

Colonel C. J. Crane, 9th Infantry, aspires to be a General Officer. The Colonel served with me for a little while in St. Louis as Military Secretary, in which position he was certainly efficient, obliging and acceptable. He, too has the reputation of being a first class soldier, and I feel safe in recommending him for the position to which he aspires.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) J. F. WESTON,
Major General, Commanding.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
No. 1744 G Street.

May 5, 1909.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I have the honor to recommend the record and services of Colonel Charles J. Crane, 9th Infantry, for consideration when appointments to the grade of Brigadier General, U. S. Army, are made.

Colonel Crane is a class-mate. I have known him intimately for thirty-six years. He is an officer of the highest character and attainment, well qualified, mentally, professionally and physically, for appointment as a Brigadier General.

Colonel Crane has served in every grade from Cadet to Colonel in the regular establishment, and was Colonel of the 9th U. S. Infantry and Lieutenant Colonel of the 38th U. S. Infantry, Volunteers, during the war with Spain and the Philippine Insurrection, and rendered excellent services in Cuba and the Philippines.

While Chief of Staff and Adjutant General of the Department of the East, in 1902 and 1903, Colonel Crane was my assistant. He is a hard-working, painstaking, intelligent and conscientious officer of unexceptionable habits and has never used liquor or tobacco.

(Signed) THOMAS H. BARRY,
Major General, U. S. Army.

WATERVLIET, N. Y.

September 18, 1909.

In event of a vacancy in the list of Brigadier Generals, I earnestly desire to give my testimony in behalf of Colonel C. J. Crane, 9th Infantry.

He was decidedly one of the best officers I had under me before my retirement from active service.

I knew him to be an active, pains-taking, conscientious and able officer, devoted to duty and the welfare of those under his command.

His record cannot but be of the best, and his long service in the line of the Army has eminently fitted him for promotion to a higher grade, and for the good of the service I still love, I recommend him to the appointing power.

Very respectfully,
J. FORD KENT.
Brigadier General, U. S. Army, Retired.

LAREDO, TEXAS.

September 12, 1909.

I wish to add my recommendation to that of others for the appointment (or the consideration for appointment) of Colonel Charles J. Crane 9th Infantry, as Brigadier General.

Colonel Crane served with me in the 24th Infantry, from 1877, 24 years, and our intimacy has continued.

I consider that he has, in a remarkable degree the qualities required in a General Officer.

High and strong character, ingrained conscientiousness, knowledge of his profession, ability, a well poised mind, indomitable resolution, energy and skill, along with the highest sense of duty and unblemished reputation, all no doubt apparent in his record at the War Department.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. MARKLEY,
Brigadier General, Retired.

Major Bundy in his report of inspection, March 8-31, 1909, says:—

Colonel Charles J. Crane, 9th Infantry, and the officers under him are commended for the fine appearance, good discipline and high standard of instruction maintained in the 9th Infantry, as shown at the various inspection exercises.

This regiment is in excellent condition.

Major Rivers in his report of inspection made February 21, March 19, 1910, says:—

Colonel C. J. Crane, 9th Infantry, deserves special commendation for the excellent condition of the 9th Infantry.
